Nine recently returned case officers from their first field tours representing a variety of operational experiences and from various stations, related their experiences in the field and the relevancy of the training they received to their respective assignments. The conference agenda included briefings by OTR officers on recent developments and changes in operations training programs and seminar sessions on the subjects of "Training in Source Acquisition" and "The What, When, and Depth of Skills Training." It was the consensus of all participants that the conference served a very useful purpose for exchanging views and validating current training programs. A summary report of findings will be submitted later.

2. From 7 - 10 December 1970, ten instructors from the Agent and Liaison Training Branch took the Information Reports Familiarization Course (IR Fam).
